ADDITIONAL CITY NEWS.

His Case to Go Before the Grand Jury.

When the notorious Henry Schreck emerges from the county prison twenty-nine days hence he will be required to confront the Grand Jury by reason of the little picnic he superintended at the east end orchard on Monday, it being the intention of Mrs. Klinger and Mrs. Thatcher to prefer charges against him in the criminal court for the dastardly assault made upon them. Henry's chances for a short sojourn in the penitentiary are decidedly bright.

A Barr Street Racket.

There was a lively racket in a Barr street saloon yesterday afternoon, in which James Forest and several women assumed the leading roles. James had taken aboard a wee bit too much of the "Oh be joyful!" and making himself very obnoxious to the women they proceeded to thump him unmercifully, and after they had gotten through with the thumping they deliberately and coolly locked him up in his accustomed place of abode, where he was compelled to remain the balance of the day.

A Handsome Present.

Mrs. Meyer, the widow of the gentleman who was killed by the Schnurr brothers, in Bloomingdale, on the afternoon of Sunday last, was yesterday evening made the recipient of a handsome present at the hands of her neighbors. It consisted of $75.00 in cash. Those neighbors were certainly actuated by a spirit of Christian liberality, and their conduct is deserving of the highest commendation.

Appointments for Speaking.

Hon. A. Ellison, of Lagrange county, Democratic candidate for Presidential elector in this district, will speak as follows:

At Portland, Tuesday, Sept. 7th.

At Winchester, Wednesday, Sept. 8th.

At Richmond, Thursday, Sept. 9th.

Walpole G. Colerick in DeKalb County.

From the Garret Head-Light.

Our Democratic congressional standard-bearer, Hon. W. G. Colerick, in his canvass of this county, and in fact of the entire district, is being enthusiastically greeted by the people on every hand. The meeting at Cornudas Thursday evening was a success. He was welcomed by a crowd of 1,500. A large delegation composed of the Hancock and English club of Kendallville came down and were met by the Cornet band at the outskirts of the village, where a torch-light procession was formed and marched into town. Mr. Colerick's speech reviewing the history of the Republican party therein in the crimes and fallacies of the two Grant administrations were clearly exposed and proven by documentary evidence and citation of facts, was listened to with deep interest.

Mr. Colerick also received a splendid ovation at Waterloo Saturday evening, where he addressed a large and enthusiastic crowd.

All along the lines the camp fires are burning brightly, and there never before was such an outpouring of Democratic energy and enthusiasm as at the present time.

Old DeKalb is solid for the Democratic ticket.

A Party of Roughs Thump a Grocerman.

Between four and five o'clock yesterday afternoon a party of roughs entered the grocery and saloon kept by a gentleman named Grotenhouse, at the corner of Holman and Monroe streets, and after crowding the proprietor up into a corner, began to amuse themselves by pounding him with their fists and a bottle. Their object evidently was plunder after they should have rendered Mr. Grotenhouse insensible, but the latter's wife appearing on the scene and giving the alarm, caused the scoundrels to beat a retreat in the direction of the railroad, where they boarded a passing freight train and succeeded in making their escape.

WAS GENERAL SHERMAN, too, a traitor in 1876-77, gentle organs?

You must be consistent, you know,

and impartial.

THE arrangements for the joint discussion to take place between Hon.

FRANKLIN LANDERS and Judge

PORTER, in this city, on Friday next,

have been nearly all completed.

There will be a big crowd in attendance.

HON. ALBERT PALMER, who presided at the great HANCOCK meeting at Faneuil Hall on Saturday evening, has been for nearly ten years a member of the Massachusetts Legislature, serving several terms in the Senate, and upon the most important committees. He has been a Republicans until last year, when he joined the Independent movement, and presided over the independent Convention in Worcester. He has for years been one of the most active and eloquent speakers upon the Republican stump in New England.

A PRIVATE letter from Governor

HENDRICKS to a friend in Washington says that Indiana will undoubtedly elect the Democratic ticket in October, and this despite the fact that

Governor HENDRICKS says that the Republican managers have succeeded in colonizing at least three thousand colored voters in the State. Representative MORRISON, of Illinois, writes here that never before in the history of politics in that State have the Republican managers put forth such efforts as in the present canvass.

The Democrats have never before had such a strong State ticket in the field, which accounts for Republican activity.

REPUBLICANS make great ado over

A. G. PORTER's oratorical powers and his peculiar fitness for the ordinary task of a stump speaker. Well, it is perhaps all well enough to be a ready speaker, and as this seems to be the only excellence claimed for him

by his party, we shall not be so disobliging as to seriously deny it—and we will even go so far as to admit that it is about all he is good for. If good for anything else, his friends have not so far made the fact at all prominent in this canvass. Now, we think distinction as a public speaker

among the least valuable of the qualities wanted in a Governor, for the reason that there is so little need for

If Mr. PORTER has ever practiced any of the useful arts of productive industry, that add to the material wealth of a people, like the laboring sons of toil, whose votes he is trying to catch by his arts as stump-speaker, he would have stronger claims upon their sympathy and their confidence. We doubt if he ever did so much in this line of industry as to feed the pigs or drive up the cows when he was a boy. He was probably too deeply engaged in his lessons in oratory and stump-speaking to have much time left for so unpretending, but more useful employment.

To Hon. R. S. Taylor:

It is with extreme reluctance I feel constrained to appear in print over my own signature in explanation of political opinions. It is a position into which a man not a candidate for office ought not to have been forced. I may be a candidate myself some day and present opinions may then be unpopular. But I accept the position I find myself in as the just penalty for my presumption in venturing to ask a Republican candidate for Congress a question that in my judgment he ought to have answered without subjecting me to the task of answering his questions in turn. It seems, however, from my experience, that a voter is to question a Republican candidate for Congress at his peril, and at the hazard of having a political discussion on his hands if he does. It is probable a large majority of voters would rather go without knowledge of a candidate's opinions than to get at them on this condition; but it seems the only one on which yours are to be had, and having been rash enough to ask for them, I must abide the consequence of my temerity, and accept it as a fresh illustration of the Republican idea of "the freedom of elections." And lest silence should be misconstrued into conscious inability to answer, and reproach be thereby sought to be cast upon those holding the like opinions with myself, I will try to answer your questions according to the best measure of my ability.

You ask me if I concur in the propositions advanced by Democratic Senators and Representatives in recent debate on the election laws, to the effect:

1st. That the United States has no voters.

2d. That the United States has no elections.

3d. That the United States has no right to control elections.

4th. That Representatives go to Washington as agents of the States; and,

5th. What I think of Governor Hendricks' proposition that petty violations of the revenue laws should be punished by Justices of the Peace of the States?

Questions, five in number, and requiring all the traditional skill of a "Philadelphia Lawyer" to answer satisfactorily. I even feel myself staggering as I approach them; but first as to the first, and then as to the others in their order.

1st. I am of the opinion that the United States has no voters under existing laws, but that she might have by resort to necessary legislation on the subject. And I hold this opinion for what seem to me as good reasons; only one of which, however, is felt necessary to be stated in answer to the question, viz: That the United States never wilfully neglects its duties or wantonly disregards its obligations. That she has not regarded herself as having any voters up to this time, is to be inferred from her never having defined their qualifications, nor provided by act of Congress for the manner in which they shall vote at elections. It will not do to say the Constitution has fixed the qualifications of her voters by accepting those each State may have prescribed for its own voters; for the Constitutional provision can not be executed without the aid of legislation, and no legislation for it has been provided by Congress. The acquiescence of the National government for more than ninety years in the election of members of Congress, (that of presidential electors being subject to exclusive state control), under state laws, seems to amount almost to demonstration of the practice the framers of the constitution intended to be followed under it. Congress having exclusive control of coinage, weights and measures, etc., proceeded at once to provide for them by law. If it had been held at the time that its authority extended equally to the no less important matter of providing for election of congressmen, it would not have failed to provide for them. But they made no provision whatever on the subject, thus leaving to the states respectively the practice of providing for them under state laws; and congress having abstained from legislation for drawing to itself and away from the states the control of these elections, and its right being at best but a limited instead of an absolute one, it is to be presumed that course was intended to be followed until something in the nature of a dictate of necessity should arise for preserving the existence of the government by taking its limited right over elections of congressmen into its own hands. But even in this extreme right of last resort to the means of self preservation, its freedom of action is hampered by the condition that the qualifications of its voters shall be the same as the qualifications of the state voters. It is for congress, in the exercise of its discretion, to determine when the time for taking the election of members of congress out of the hands of state legislature, where it has been exercised for ninety years, and exercise the almost but not quite absolute control of them it is authorized by the constitution to assume. The question is purely one of policy, and not one of right or of lawful authority. So far it seems to have been thought best to leave these elections wholly to State control. I say "it seems to have been thought best," for until the passage of the act of Congress in 1871 for appointing deputy marshals and supervisors to control elections for members of Congress etc., under State laws, no attempt had ever been made by Congress to draw to itself any supervision or control of these elections under State laws. And this brings me to your.

Second and third questions, which for convenience will be answered as one, by saying that in my opinion Congress not having passed any law for defining the qualifications of its voters, nor for regulating the manner in which their votes should be cast counted and returned, is for the lack of these preliminary and essential conditions, to be held as having neither voters nor elections of its own. It seems to me that any man who knows beans when the bag is open before him ought to know this. It is to me hard to conceive upon what ground she can set up a pretence to the right of supervising and marshalling the voters of a state that are voting under the laws of a state. It is my opinion that the pretence of such right is absurd, and if complied with would be productive of evil in a matter that for ninety years continuous practice under exclusive State control has been attended by the happiest results. It will be time enough for Congress to assert her limited right to control these elections, when she has prescribed the qualifications of her voters, and provided her own necessary machinery for collecting, counting and returning their result. But it will not do for the Republican party to try to steal into surreptitious control of Federal elections under State laws. The State ground is broader than that of Congress, and therefore, it is, I suppose, that the Republican party is on the alert to get control of it, rather than be forced to rely upon the more limited one of Congress.

4th. For answer to your fourth question, I have to say that I never before heard of any Democrat either in or out of Congress asserting that a Representative in Congress is held to be "the agent of a State." According to my conception of his duties he is a representative for legislative purposes solely, rather than "an agent" for anything or anybody. The province of an "agent" is to act under and in pursuance of law after it has been enacted by competent authority, while that of a Representative in Congress at Washington is to assist in making the laws by which not only agents but others as well are to be governed. Under Republican practice, however, his duties seem to have been mainly to dabble in Credit Mobilier and De Golyer contracts, and to devote his leisure moments to soliciting appointments for those who have been most forward and serviceable in securing his election; and for services such as these, (or at least in spite of them), one has been known to be honored by his party with the nomination for President. I will do you the justice to say that I believe these things are neither in accordance with your own sense of propriety or justice, and that if your advice had been asked, you would have recommended a different choice.

5th. As to Governor Hendricks' proposition, I am inclined to think favorably of it. At present but one objection to it occurs to me, viz: The clothing officers acting under state appointment with authority derived from another jurisdiction. But this objection might be removed by consent of the state authority for their officers to act ex-officio under Federal jurisdiction. The good to be accomplished by it is manifest, while the danger to be avoided, viz: The needless increase of Federal appointments already larger in number than the population of some single states, is not less so.

The length of this answer already exceeds its intended limits, and I can not, therefore, do more than refer in general terms to other points in your letter. I must, therefore, content myself with the single remark that it seems only the abuse of the doctrine of State Rights, as illustrated in the single instance of secession that you hold as "accursed." Taken in this sense, "I can pardon something to a spirit of liberty," and an earnest though mistaken zeal for the national Constitution, and am content not to find fault with you for the vigor of your denunciation. But you should be more careful in formulating your future denunciations and not suffer them to embrace doctrines when you only mean the abuse of them.

One other remark: The Republican party claims in its platform, and you justify it by your support of it, the monstrous pretension that in case of disagreement between the Federal and a State government, the right of ultimate decision rests with the Federal Government. If might makes right, then this pretension may be upheld; but not otherwise. It is none other than that in a dispute between a strong man and a weak one, the strong one may of right name the terms of settlement. Better in my humble opinion lay down no rules for such cases, but leave the door open for the supreme logic of eternal justice to enter after the excitement is over, and say what should have been done. This supreme arbiter finally reverses all wrong decisions, both of courts and of Legislatures, and it is but folly to try to forestall this judgment, as the declaration on this subject in the Republican platform tries to do.

As this letter has been mainly devoted to answering questions, I ask to be allowed some future but early occasion for commenting on the able and temperate statement of your opinion on the doctrine of State Rights contained in your letter, but only incidentally alluded to in this somewhat extended answer to your questions. I am sure you realize the impossibility of doing both tasks in a single letter of reasonable length.

Very truly yours,

WILLIAM H. JONES.

Fort Wayne, August 31, 1880.

Notes of the Campaign.

Now Republicans all, whoever you may be,

If you want to rise to the top of the tree,

In your youth get a chance to drive a mule,

And in politics be guided by this golden rule:

"Take what you can get, and swear it was lent."

And you may be candidates for President."

Every vote counts one.

Secretary Evans has backed out of the Garfield campaign.

Every ballot cast for Hancock will be one vote nearer a pure government.

An out-and-out Garfield man is as scarce in these parts as a case of small pox.

The "shadow of the Presidency" is weary of hanging around Ohio, and is edging off.

Ex-Governor Seymour will speak during the campaign as often as his health will permit.

General Butler is booked for six speeches in Maine in behalf of Plaided and the Union ticket.

Democratic literature is the most popular with the masses just now. They like it for its good, plain ENGLISH.

The stringency of the times, politically, will keep "Olet" Arthur at the head of the Republican State Committee.

The man who will propose an Electoral Commission this year will be seized by an infuriated public and sponged off with a trip-hammer.

A Western paper, in referring to Fred. Grant's latest escapade, said: "The distinguished biscuit-shooter should be sent to the frontier to flatten out Sitting Bull with pan-cakes."

Indian doctors are becoming plenty.

THE CITY.

The peach season is nearly over. Get ready for the fair next week.

Thin clothing and fans are still in demand.

Do not forget that next week is fair week.

The sweet potato crop is reported to be immense.

This is the first day of September and it still continues very hot.

Mr. Charles W. Metzgar, of the Titusville (Pa.) Daily Herald, is in the city.

Our country friends should all make arrangements to attend the Fair next week.

Col. I. B. McDonald, of Columbia City, dropped into the SENTINEL office this morning.

Miss Frankie Groneaur left for California this morning on a visit to her uncle, Daniel Gillett.

Clara Craig, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Craig, of Bluffton, is lying at the point of death.

The Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania company passed through Fort Wayne this afternoon en route to Chicago.

A well-known Ohio gentleman who arrived in the city this morning, says that there is a good show for Democratic success in that state.

This is the monthly pay day with the city of Fort Wayne and the police and other officers of the municipality are correspondingly happy.

There was not a single offender of the law in the calaboose last night, and Capt. Smith and Lieutenant Wilkinson grew very lonesome in their quiet vigil.

M. Frank the enterprising proprietor of the Bee Hive has returned from the east where he purchased an immense stock of goods for the fall and winter trade.

It still remains a sort of dog-day weather. About two o'clock in the afternoon you feel as though you had bathed in mucilage and then rolled in a pile of feathers.

The Northern Indiana fair at this place next week promises to be the best ever held in the county and our people should not fail to give it their assistance and patronage.

The custom many people in the city have of jumping into a carriage left standing along the sidewalk and driving off either on business or pleasure without the consent or knowledge of the owner of the rig, will be suddenly stopped short some of these days. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

Manager Currier, of the American Union Telegraph Company, was last evening made the recipient of hearty congratulations on the success of the company he represents in the matter of the telegraph injunction case in which Judge Lowry rendered his opinion as published in these columns yesterday.

Have you decided yet upon what you intend to place on exhibition at the Northern Indiana Fair which opens in this city next week? Every business man, artisan, mechanic, tradesman and housekeeper should be represented by exhibits of some character. Should the weather prove propitious the indications are that the exhibition will prove a grand success.

A man named Leising, who was accused with having struck his wife, was arrested yesterday on information lodged by the latter and gave bail for the payment of the fine that would be taxed up against him. Leising denied the charge, but admitted that he grew very angry when charged by his better half with being false to his marital vows. Mayor Zollinger fined him five dollars and costs.

A number of the citizens of Decatur, Bluffton and other points are very desirous of listening to the joint debate between Indiana's next Governor—Hon. Franklin Landers—and Judge Porter, and if it be possible so to do arrangements will be made by which the railroad companies will issue round trip tickets at reduced rates between those places and this city.

How Charles Cagnet Met His Death.

A correspondent writing from Madison township requests the publication of the following with reference to the killing of Charles Cagnet by the cars, on the 27th ult., mention of which was made in the SENTINEL at the time: The deceased was respected and well liked in the neighborhood. He was seventy-eight years old, childish, hard of hearing and his eyesight very poor. In consequence of his mind being weak he had acquired the habit of taking long walks through the neighborhood with the view to dissipating the gloomy thoughts that apparently were constantly pressing him down, and on the day in question while taking his accustomed walk he unfortunately reached the railroad and becoming tired sat down to rest. He did not notice the approach of the train which came along a short time subsequent, and which struck and killed him. Peace to his ashes.

Falls-Buckles.

A Bluffton correspondent writing to the SENTINEL says: In this place, on the 26th ult., at the residence of Mr. W. A. Gutelius, Mr. Charles M. Falls and Miss Jennie R. Buckles, both of Fort Wayne, were united in marriage by Rev. J. H. Reider. This was one of the most enjoyable occasions it has been the writer's privilege to attend for sometime past. Among the invited guests from abroad were Martin V. B. Spencer and wife, Fort Wayne; Miss Eva Deltzell, Ft. Wayne; Miss Ida Deltzell, Lima, Ohio; Misses Ollie and Etta Falls, Ft. Wayne; Miss Maud Saylor, Marion; Mrs. E. Worthington, Fremont, Ohio; Mr. W. S. Buckles, Ft. Wayne. May peace and prosperity ever attend Mr. and Mrs. Falls through their journey in life.

Released from Jail.

The husband of the woman named Annie Campbell was released from jail yesterday morning, having served out the time for which he had been committed, and at once began an effort looking for the release of his wife from the same institution—the latter having been found drunk in a gutter on Saturday night. Upon the notorious couple promising to leave the State at once the prison doors were thrown open and the woman allowed her freedom. An attempt to have Annie disclose what disposition she had made of the smoothing-irons she stole from Mrs. James McMahon, (the woman whose husband wanted to hang himself at the Mayor's office yesterday morning,) proved a signal failure.

Robbed on the Railroad.

A gentleman traveling west on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad, in company with his wife and two children, was yesterday robbed of his pocket book containing eight hundred dollars at a point somewhere between Canton and Massillon. While the passenger soundly slept some unknown scoundrel who had taken a seat by his side cut his vest from the outside and thus secured the prize. The unfortunate passenger alighted at Massillon and made known his loss, but the thief had already made good his escape by jumping from the train before its arrival at that place.

George W. Julian Next Week.

While the arrangements for the joint discussion between Hon. Franklin Landers and Judge Porter are going forward, our readers should not forget the fact that Hon. George W. Julian, one of the ablest of the able, will speak at the Rink on Tuesday evening next, August 7th. There will be a grand torch light procession in honor of the distinguished gentleman which will be participated in by the Democratic First Voters' Club, the Young Men's Club and the several ward clubs. The demonstration will be made an immense affair.

Madison Township Matters.

Rev. J. P. Karrer, of the German Lutheran church, preached his farewell sermon last Sunday.

A straw stack belonging to John Cox was burned by the lightning a few days since. It was a total loss.

Mr. A. J. Marquardt is erecting a new residence.

Mr. H. Depper gave a social party at his residence, on Sunday last, at which a number of his Fort Wayne friends were present.

Eugene Guinen spent Sunday with his parents, and William Shaffer has returned from Lagrange county.

Local and General Musical and Dramatic Notes.

Mr. Charles F. Len, brother of Mr. A. J. Lang, of this city, will take the leading tenor role in Dudley Buck's new opera, "Deseret."

Prof. Schultz is contemplating a series of popular concerts for orchestra. These popular cheap concerts have been very successful all over the country.

A. J. Goodrich, formerly of the Fort Wayne Conservatory, succeeds Signor Tamburello in the Beethoven Conservatory, St. Louis.

Miss Belle McDonald will soon return to Boston to pursue her musical studies.

Prof. Kinsey has returned from the west, and has assumed the responsibility of the vocal department of the M. E. college.

It is time some one was making a move to get up an amateur opera company in Fort Wayne. It will be a disgrace if the coming season passes by and no effort is made to get up some vocal work—either an opera or a cantata. We are afraid some one will be writing Fort Wayne's musical obituary.

NOTES ABROAD.

Amherst College is to have a professorship of music.

Miss Clara Poole has joined the Bijou Opera Company.

The death of Mr. D. L. Downing, the well known band-master, occurred in New York last week.

Boito, the composer of "Meistofele," is as modest as he is able. He refuses all banquets and public orations.

Ann Arbor University has added a full course of music, both vocal and instrumental.

"La Fille de Tambour Major" will probably be the most popular comic opera presented in America this coming season.

It costs $70,000 per year for gas to light the Paris Grand Opera House.

Theodore Thomas has returned from his European trip and expresses his intention to make New York his future home.

Mr. T. F. Seward, of New York, assisted by Mr. B. C. Unseld, has published a book in the "Tonic Sol-fa" notation.

Gilbert and Sullivan are at work on a new opera for the United States. It is said to be a "fairy story."

English's Opera House, Indianapolis, will be completed Sept. 27.

The dramatic and musical obituary for the year 1880, thus far, includes, among others, the names of Mrs. Mary Chapman, Felicia Vestvali, Henry Wieniawski, George Honey, J. B. Omahundro, J. R. Planche, John Brougham, T. L. Donnelly, E. H. Majilton, Ole Bull, Tom Taylor and Adelaide Neilson.

Helen Potter's Pleiades comprise Miss Potter, Harriet Earnest, soprano; the Eichberg Quartette—Lillian Chandler, violinist; Lettie Lauder, cello; Emma Grebe, viola; Lillian Shattuck, cello; and Her Die-drich, pianist, who makes his first bow to the American public. M. Harry St. Ormond, late with Camilla Urso, is manager.

The Emma Abbott Company are rehearsing four new operas for the coming season, viz: "The Lover's Pilgrimage," "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Carmen" and "The Gem of Peru." Emma Abbott, Julia Rosewald, Zella Segerin, Brignoli and Castle will appear in each of these operas.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE OLYMPIC.

The bill presented at the Olympic this week is one of unusual merit. The many new characters introduced are well versed in their specialties, and their number gives the entertainment a variety of amusements very pleasing to witness. Little Lizzie Randolph and her little brother, Jim, are perfect little artists, and the Sheridans, in their Irish comicalities, are a whole show in themselves. The musical Barrys continue to please the audience, and Miss Adair to mystify all who witness her lightning changes of costume. Julia Emmonds is another attraction, and she is always welcomed to the stage.

The after piece, Lanagan's Bal, is a laughable performance, and is well worth going to see.

The Olympic is giving a first-rate show this week, and those who enjoy the Variety should see it. There will be a complete change of programme to-morrow evening.

Patterns

Given

Away.

Mme. Demorest having broken faith with us, by putting her patterns on sale in two other establishments in town, and having failed to make good her promises to these two parties, as well as ourselves, we have decided to drop her patterns, very much as people drop a hot potato.

Tuesday morning, August 24th, we shall commence to dispose of them after this fashion: Every customer purchasing goods in any of our departments, to the amount of one dollar and upwards, will be handed a catalogue of Mme. Demorest's latest styles of patterns, from which they will be requested to select one pattern which they most desire. This will then be wrapped up with their goods free of charge. This system will be continued from day to day until the entire stock on hand has been given away. These patterns are for basques, train skirts, walking skirts, overskirts, walking costumes, princess dresses, wrappers, polonaises, cloaks, jackets, blouses, dolmans, ulsters, &c., for ladies and misses, also a full line of patterns for ladies' underwear, and for boys' and children's suits. There is not an old pattern in the entire lot.

As we are anxious to close them out at once, we hope our friends will not be backward in coming forward to secure them. The usual prices of these patterns are 20, 25, and 30 cents.
